

On the energy and particle distribution of relativistic atoms

Konstantin Merz

ETH Zurich

We review some results concerning the energy and particle distribution in ground states of heavy, relativistic atoms. The reviewed results are asymptotic in nature: they describe properties of many-particle systems in the limit of a large number of particles. Based on joint works with Rupert Frank, Heinz Siedentop, and Barry Simon.